A stewardship initiative for human rights and social issues

It is an initiative to manage human rights and social questions. CaixaBank has joined the initiative as a participant, with the role of investor collaborator for companies with specific commitments.

Advance is a management initiative led by the PRI in which institutional investors work together to understand measures in terms of human rights and social assumptions. Investors use their collective influence between companies and other decision makers to promote positive results for workers, communities and society. The initiative will mainly surround the exchange through the use of the influence of investors in the portfolio companies. The following three expectations are set for the companies on which the commitment is focused: Fully apply the United Nations Guiding Principles, which are the containment barrier for business conduct in the area of human rights.

- Align the political commitment with the responsibility to respect human rights.
- Delve into the advances in the greatest questions of human rights in operations and along the value chains.
